
Carbondale Historical Society and city residents are concerned about the fate of Carbondale's classically styled Post Office building, above, after the U.S. Postal Service moves into a new facility which is to be built on Dundaff Street this year. Many residents believe the site, below, is too far from the central business district. Trichilo Wholesale Foods in in the background. (Times Photos by Ros-Al)